Los Angeles Gets the Republican Convention.

GRANT MEMORIAL SERVICES.

A Grand Ovation to Ex-President Davis—Arizona Outrages

in Arizona.

[Special to the Herald by the Associated Press.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—The Republican State Central Committee held a meeting to-day, with A. P. Williams in the chair and fifty-two members present. The important matter that came before the committee for action were the appointment of delegates to the State Convention and the time and place for holding the same, and the consideration of a plan to harmonize the quarrel between the factions of the County Committee of this city. After the roll was called, a resolution was adopted to select the place for holding the next State Convention.

In a short speech Col. Boyce proposed Los Angeles. Col. Boyce asked the selection of Los Angeles, not as a right, but as a convenience, as it has the largest population of any other city of the State. The accommodations were greater than of any other city of the State. Far to Los Angeles, he said, the men of the party had better go to there than to stay at home. [Laughter.] The heart of Los Angeles was beating in union with the great heart of the Republic.

Chris Green proposed Sacramento, H. W. Byington proposed Santa Rosa, Ross Ellingson proposed Stockton, and W. W. Cameron proposed Sacramento.

For the nomination of Sacramento, 30 Los Angeles, 34 Santa Rosa, 11; Oakland, 7; Stockton, 11. Second ballot: Los Angeles, 56; Sacramento, 29; Stockton, 7; San Francisco, 1.

Los Angeles was declared the place of holding the next State Convention. The appointment of delegates to the State Convention was fixed for May 1, 1886, at the depot to receive Mr. Davis. It was difficult for the carriage in which he was seated to make its way through the surging mass of humanity that blocked the streets. All of this despite the fact that the horses had been harnessed to the carriage.

The ovation was the grandest of his life. The demonstrations of your high personal qualities and the unvarying spirit of courtesy and good will you have shown to us will remain in our memory twenty years hence.

To come beyond Germany and France the present tariff beyond London should be added to the rate to London. The above will give a reduction to Great Britain, Ireland, and France of 28 cents.

Arrived at the Hotel California, twenty-five cents, the present tariff in each case being fifty-two cents a word.

Chamber of Commerce on Labor Questions.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The Chamber of Commerce held a special meeting this afternoon to take action on the labor question in its relation to strikes.

A large number of business men were in attendance. Resolutions were presented that the strike of miners of the coal fields of the country be considered as a proper subject of arbitration; that the Chamber fully recognized the right of all classes of citizens to unite in strikes for labor's sake, so long as all moral and legal means for furthering their interests. The resolutions were discussed at great length, nearly all those present making strong speeches in favor of arbitration.

The occasion will be used to call a general meeting of citizens of America to support the principles of the resolution presented by Gladys Schwab, calling upon citizens of America to support the guardians of law in maintaining peace and order with added strength and resolution.

The entire resolution, the first adopted here to strike the soldiers of Alabama who fell in the war.

A Chapter of Gondism.

Senator Van Wyck, in his speech in the United States Senate day before yesterday, went a great deal further in arraigning Jay Gould than Grand Master Workman Powdery had ventured to go. The truth is that the career of this man Gould has been singularly infamous, and the very fact of his association with any cause damns it in advance with every honest man. His biography has become a matter of history. His earlier exploits were in partnership with Jim Fisk. Their record as bribers of Legislatures and Judges, while unexampled, is well established. The way these worthies wrecked the Erie railway was perhaps the most finished specimen of the work of the modern Jack Shepherd ever chronicled. By some financial hook-a-pones they got a majority of the stockholders of this unfortunate corporation to elect them and their friends directors. Once in the seat of power they laid their plans deep and well. They dispatched their agents to Albany; and, under pretense that the roadbed of the Erie Company had suffered great dilapidation, they procured the passage of an innocent looking act which permitted the directory of the corporation to issue additional stock in order to provide the necessary repairs for it. This provision was very cunningly framed. These freebooters, of course, always employed the best legal advice. When they acquired control of the Erie Railway Company the capital stock of that company consisted of $28,000,000, largely held in England. The English stockholders were alarmed, and sent a committee representing their interests to the United States, to stem the tide of spoliation. They were embarked in a boldless undertaking. They did not know the men with whom they were dealing. It was at this stage that the interesting little provision about the issuing of new stock came into play. The Messrs. Fisk and Gould found out the precise amount of stock their English fellow-stockholders had, and proceeded to go them one better. They immediately set their printing presses to work, and having the original stock and transfer books in their own possession, they proceeded to "know under" the "blasted Britishers." Faced with their first success, and recognising the facility with which fast power presses could do their work, they never stopped until they had run up the original $28,000,000 worth of stock of the Erie Railway to the enormous total of $112,000,000.

It is very often upon precisely analogous operations—the wattering of stock to a shameless extent—that the American people are called upon to pay dividends to-day. Senator Van Wyck indulged in no exaggeration when he dwelt upon the infamy of the colossal waterings of stock which have complicated the transportation interests of the United States. There have of course been honest railway men and honestly managed railroads. But they have been the exception which proved the rule. There can be no question but that the present labor troubles in the East have been fearfully complicated and intensified by the thrusting forward of this monumental robber Gould as the champion of the capitalist interests. It was unfortunate in every respect. Intelligent men concede the fact that the time is approaching, if it is not already at hand, when there must be a change in the wild and reckless latitude of action which some rich men have accorded to themselves. The man who doubts the restlessness, power, & the masses under proper leadership, and with a genuine concern, is mad. This Republican Senator talked the other day, as he has occasionally talked in the past, not much as if he were a Democrat. He must feel himself very much like a fish out of water as a Republican. It is to be hoped that some scheme of arbitration will be devised by Congress which will take the management of disputes between capital and labor under a kindly and restraining guidance. To accomplish this deviously to be desired consummation there are ample implied powers under the Constitution of the United States without straining unduly that instrument.

The Republican State Central Committee, which had given no pledge in the matter, express or implied, has decided to hold the next Democratic State Convention in Los Angeles. There has been more than an implied pledge that the next Democratic State Convention should be held here. If there had been any intention upon the part of the State Central Committee to recede from this original understanding, and to select Santa Rosa, or some other point, we suppose this action upon the part of the Republicans settles the matter. Both parties, if they are wise, will aim to conciliate the immense new vote of Southern California.

ELSEWHERE appears the first of a series of letters from the Sacramento correspondent of the HERALD. He is a gentleman characterized no less by the graces of his style than by his facilities for and faculties of accurate observation. We are glad to see that he coincides with the opinion so frequently advanced in this journal, viz., that the prospects for the success of the Democracy have greatly brightened of late. In fact, there has never been such a complete change in the current of politics in this State as has characterized the past two or three months. "Mas Lugo's" letters will be interesting features of the HERALD in the future.

THE decision of the Supreme Court, of which was given in yesterday's HERALD, has aroused a great resentment in this city, whose future is so inseparably bound up with the right to appropriate the waters of our running streams to purposes of irrigation. A great stress of motives has prevented our treating this important subject at adequate length in this morning's issue but we shall handle it fully to-morrow.

of any member of the party to vot for. Indeed, should this "tempest in a teapot" about the non-reception of the Chinese Minister in San Francisco assume undue proportions, it may give the effect of making Judge Hayes dispossess the favor of the law which the Chinese Minister arrived, and land him without the slightest question? Section 13 of the Act of Congress approves of a, &c., the "privileges and immunities of the diplomatic officers from the Chinese government shall be taken as the equivalent of their right of land."
